Storm Rocks the Boat in Tri-Town

By Jean Perry

After months of hurricane-season hype, the storm that actually managed to do some damage to the area was perhaps the least promoted by the nation's weather forecast reporting machine.

From about 8:00 pm Sunday night, October 29, until Monday afternoon, October 30, the wind and water took a toll on the Tri-Town region, from boats beached in Mattapoisett to leaves, limbs, and branches – along with power outage reports – piling up all throughout the three towns.

Several roads were closed as trees knocked down power lines. In Mattapoisett, North Street was closed for hours between Crystal Spring Road and the Rochester town line due to live wires down in the street. The Mattapoisett Police reported live wires on fire in the middle of Crystal Spring Road.

Tri-Town schools were closed on Monday due to power outages and road closures.

The Tri-Town area got anywhere from 2 to 2.5 inches of rain, according to the National Weather Service in Taunton. A gust of 62 mph was reported in Wareham, and one above hurricane strength, 72 mph, was documented on West Island in Fairhaven.

The remnants of Tropical Storm Phillipe provided the energy for a storm forming in the path of Southern New England to strengthen, bringing with it coastal damage and erosion, along with property and tree damage before letting loose on Monday evening.

As of 6:00 pm Tuesday night, roughly 20% of Tri-Town households were still without electricity – 6% of Marion, 6% of Mattapoisett, and about 8% of Rochester remained in the dark.

On the Cover: Boo! – Halloween in the Marion village is one event that shouldn't be missed! Hundreds upon hundreds of little ghosts, ghouls, and goblins took to the streets to show off their costumes and follow it up with some treats (no tricks) and refreshments at the Marion Music Hall, sponsored by those very kind witches at the Marion Art Center. The Sippican School students led the parade under the direction of Hannah Moore. Photo by Paul Lopes See more photos from the Marion and Mattapoisett Halloween Parades on pages 54 & 56.*

The Wild Turkey

By George B. Emmons

A flock of wild turkeys at the edge of a cornfield, as in my illustration, is a bird watcher's sight to behold. It becomes even more exciting when the turkeys cross the road into our own backyards, like when an onerous male recently caused quite a stir in the center of Mattapoisett. The macho behavior of a tom can be quite impressive when gobbling for attention while raising and spreading out a fan shape tail, and blowing up to strut around, humming, with wings antagonistically drooped and played out for competitive combat.

The frequency of sightings in urban areas is still rising after their numbers were so seriously depleted and overhunted at the turn of the 20th century. At that time, turkeys were classified as big game by eminent wildlife writer and illustrator Ernest Thompson Seton in his masterwork seven-volume reference encyclopedia entitled Big Game Animals of North America. What we are seeing today is the result of many years of conservation. State stocking programs made the wild turkey population come alive like the proverbial Phoenix rising up out of the ashes after cutting his forest habitat for agricultural pasture and building lots.

The natural history of the wild turkey in this neck of the woods is somewhat sketchy as to native origin, but it seems to surface at the first Thanksgiving in Plymouth in 1621, not far away as the crow flies but distantly obscured in accounts going back 400 years in time. The annual occasion is not well documented when some 90 Wampanoags contributed five deer to an autumn feast along with a corn and clam dish called Nasaump, and a pumpkin and squash succotash called Pompion. Thus, they had themselves already similarly celebrated an annual autumn bountiful harvest, but probably earlier in the season after the first frosts of Indian Summer for their green corn ceremony. If there is no mention of turkeys at that gathering, it is still written that colonists thereafter learned to domesticate them by placing their eggs in the nest of domestic fowl.

Benjamin Franklin later failed to get Congress to adopt this clean living avian as the national bird, because the turkey loses its head and flies in all scatterbrained directions when threatened with danger. This tendency was considered a character flaw.

Nevertheless, over time it enjoys a national avian status symbol as illustrated in Norman Rockwell's Thanksgiving portrayal in his classic four freedom collection, particularly 'Freedom from Want.' There, a golden brown roast turkey fresh out of the oven is being placed on the table by an apron-clad grandmotherly matriarch in front of a dignified tie-and-jacket patriarchal head of the table appreciated by the smiles of more than one generation.

When we bow our heads this month before carving this emblem of Thanksgiving, let us remember and esteem the spirit of the first Americans' harvest night, as some nights inevitably are, was permeated with imperfectness – but this Friday night it was also permeated with the stench of a skunk's arse.

Some smells are so pungent that they employ other senses to get their point across. The repugnant smell our cat Luna's poor little face was emitting didn't just stink ... it provided a sensation inside the head of the smeller. A physical sensation like a tiny anarchist was inside my head rapidly firing elastic bands at the backs of my eyeballs.

This skunk smell didn't smell like that familiar airy skunk scent that wafts in through an open, breezy window at night. This smell was more like Satan relieved himself of some brutally condensed flatulence in bed next to you and held your head trapped beneath the covers – and you can only hold your breath for so long.

This was my first encounter with a skunked pet. The scope of such an incident puts it higher on the panic meter than smelling dog poop on your shoe after having walked throughout the entire house already, and just below the magnitude of the house being engulfed in flames.

Meanwhile, the cat was making its way through every room in the house the moment my panic set in. A scan would have shown every section of my brain lit up with activity – those olfactory brain parts surmounting the smell with its corresponding elastic band eyeball sensation. The "What on Earth am I supposed to do?" section of the brain fully activated as the cat ran rabidly throughout the house trailing tang into every room.

I reeled where I stood with a fight or flight stimulus (Should I continue with this or just burn the house down?). My motor planning shut down (What do I do first, grab the cat or hit up the Internet for help?).

In that second, just about the only instruction I could give was "Pause the Roku."

With a recipe for de-skunking (one quart of hydrogen peroxide, ¼ cup of baking soda, and three teaspoons of dish soap), I looked at the cat circling and hissing at everything and said, "I better go put on something with long sleeves." hoodie I bought from my alma mater before finishing my undergrad.

In my absentmindedness while moving to capture the poor creature, I rolled up said sleeves, took a good determined look at the skunk oil-drenched pissed-off cat, and remembered what I was dealing with. I rolled said sleeves back down again before plunging the cat into the bathtub.

With the back of her neck grasped tightly in my right hand, I awkwardly washed off the rest of her body with my non-dominant hand, making the mitigating measures I was performing on the cat considerably more arduous.

When it's your cat that's been skunked and it's your house at risk (the one you pay the mortgage on and clean yourself), when there's no one else to which you can turn to manage the emergency, and no, Superman is not coming, one experiences that elusive feeling in life that only an adult can have – that 'I'm actually the adult here' realization. I'm the only one who can fix this. There's no other option. It's 'fight,' not 'flight' this time. There is no escape possible.

Dangling a cat over a bathtub is one of the most tedious, most terrifying, positions to find one's self in. In an instant the cat contracts, contorts, and flings itself into a fury impossible to hold onto; something comparable to attempting to use a fully operating chainsaw with no handle.

There simply is no time to bestow mercy upon a beloved animal when its very nature is to tear into your flesh to get away from what it perceives as danger. This was no time for gentle or careful handling. No matter what, the act I was about to engage in had no cruelty-free alternative. The human brain has an interesting way of protecting itself from such trauma. The second I held that cat down in the tub and hastily spread the pasty potion all over it, kneading it into the foul-smelling fur, I could not play the loving cat mom. I was the adult in charge that had to handle this ... (explicit excrement).

"OK, little girl. That's it. OK, almost done," I reassured her while devoid of emotion, her muscles still tense but waning in resistance. With her fur entirely covered, I let her go to freely roam the bathroom that was already a federally designated disaster area.

The Internet said to let the solution soak on the fur for five minutes. I followed it up with regular pet shampoo, dried her off, and freed her. As far I could tell, most of the smell was gone from her fur and the Internet skunk remedy was a success.

Mission. Accomplished.

My inner child cheered for the adult me that had just, in the child's mind, saved the world. For a moment, the little kid in me regarded the grownup me as a hero and I allowed myself a moment of immodest celebration of my greatness.

I wonder what other critical feats I am actually capable of.

After everything settled down and the night was again calm, the skunk oil smell that lingered persisted. It acted as a stimulant of sorts during those hours after. I'm actually sitting on my sofa now at 4:43 am after an entire night of no sleep, and conscious of every inhale through my nose. The cat sits nearby under the same effects of the traumatizing tonic. She's still quietly licking herself as she's likely been doing non-stop for six hours and will likely do for most of tomorrow, too.

I thought about, ironically, the human experience, although the experience essentially began as one shared between a cat and a skunk. Still, I wondered, how equipped is the average person to handle a crisis? Just like that cat, dizzied and mad with stinging skunk gunk all in her eyes and nose, equally my own 'advanced' human mind was mad and dizzy.

It sounded like the trifling philosophical indulgence of an under-slept woman in the wee morning hours, given that it kind of was 'just a skunking.' But there's just something about people and crisis.

We talk about 'common sense' all the time, but that concept is subjective. Is knowing what to do in a crisis and then executing the appropriate action/reaction included in that category of common sense?

I think not. Why else would we have emergency responders who are trained and paid to react to emergencies for us? And is there a de-skunking emergency responder out there to call when your cat gets skunked and you don't know what to do? No!

I think that's why I'm so overly self-satisfied with the outcome. Only I could take control of that domestic disaster. There was no opportunity for flight. I ran into the fight – and I have the scratch marks to prove it.

The Future is Now at Rochester Police

Rochester Board of Selectmen

By Jean Perry

The Rochester Board of Selectmen turned its attention to the Rochester Police Department on October 30 and took two police votes – one to hire a new full-time officer and the other to get the ball rolling towards hiring a new police chief.

The board approved the Police Department's recommendation to appoint Brendan Emberg as Rochester's newest full-time police officer. Sergeant Robert Small introduced Emberg as having an Associate's degree in Liberal Arts, as well as a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of New Hampshire, and he has been a part-time officer on the force since July 2015. "He's done an excellent job," said Small. "He stated all along that it was his intention to work his way up to a full-time position."

The selectmen also gave the nod to Town Administrator Suzanne Szyndlar to begin the hiring process of replacing Chief Paul Magee when he retires in September 2018.

Szyndlar expects a lengthy hiring process, and she recommended the Town begin by drafting an updated job description for chief of police.

"It's a long process," said Szyndlar, saying the first step is to work closely with the police chief and town counsel to put a job description together in anticipation of advertising for the position. When asked, Szyndlar said she would be able to assemble a rough timeline of the events to come as the Town searches for the next police chief.

In other matters, the board approved the request for several stop signs and two yield signs at intersections on High Street identified as in need of safety upgrades. The selectmen had delayed a vote until Chief Magee would sign off a second time on approving yield signs – as opposed to stop signs – at the intersections of Walnut Plain Road at High Street and County Road at High Street.

Szyndlar said Magee did some research and found that no accidents had been recorded between 2013 and 2017 at the intersections, with Magee commenting that he saw no need for stop signs; yield signs would suffice.

The safety upgrades are being paid for by a state grant awarded to the town after the state identified High Street as a roadway with a higher-than-average rate of vehicular accidents.

Szyndlar also reported to the board that the Town's updated website would be fully implemented by November 20, as anticipated.

The next meeting of the Rochester Board of Selectmen is scheduled for November 13 at 6:30 pm at the Rochester Town Hall.

120 Front Street Will Remain a Two-Family

Marion Zoning Board of Appeals

By Jean Perry

Despite vehement opposition from the Sippican Historical Society, despite objections from abutters, and despite whatever Christian Loranger may one day plan to build at 120 Front Street, one fact remains – the two-family house was a two-family house before the Town adopted a bylaw restricting two-family houses in 1954 – and the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals recognized that when it approved the perpetuity of the two-family status.

Loranger – 120 Front Street, LLC – requested a Special Permit on October 26 for the continuance of the two-family status of the house built in 1885. Records in Loranger's possession demonstrate that it was already established as a two-family in 1950, before the bylaw was enacted, which would entitle Loranger to a grandfathered two-family status. But the board did not reach this conclusion without some debate.

The current bylaw requires that upon transfer of ownership, a Special Permit application must be filed with the ZBA. The owner must prove that the house had been legally deemed a two-family, with the continued use of a two-family without a lapse of two years.

Abutters Laura and Terrance Hartford of 114 Front Street said in a letter of objection to the Special Permit that the property had been abandoned for at least four years since Loranger purchased it in 2013. Before that, the house had been vacant since July 2010.

The Hartfords say that having a two-family house will negatively alter the character of the neighborhood.

Loranger said this was to be his family's own home, not some development in town for future rental or purchase. He said he bought the house to provide an in-law apartment to elderly parents.

It is true, said Loranger, that the house had been empty for over two years, but only because of the time it took to acquire the surrounding property, as well as Conservation Commission approval.

"I bought it as a two-family," Loranger said. "I would've liked to have been building ... my new home four years ago, but it just didn't happen."

Loranger said, although he is seeking the Special Permit, he believes he has demonstrated that the house does not need it because the two-family status pre-dates the 1954 bylaw.

Building Commissioner Scott Shippey provided some history on the property, saying a fire in 2010 rendered the house uninhabitable, prompting ZBA Chairman Marc LeBlanc to inquire, "Does this qualify as an 'abandonment' when the building is not habitable?" It's technically not habitable, so technically you cannot abandon it, LeBlanc proposed. "It'd be interesting to see what town counsel thinks about it. If you can't live in it, how can you abandon it?"

Frank McNamee, president of the Sippican Historical Society, said the 13-member board recently voted unanimously to oppose the Special Permit, adding that the two-family was "illegal" and would be a detriment to the neighborhood.

Judith Rosbe from the historical society said, "We feel very strongly that this house in particular has destroyed the beauty of the village of Marion."

The group said it would continue to seek Town Meeting approval of a new demolition bylaw to grant the historical society time to review proposed demolitions.

Turning back to 120 Front Street, Rosbe said, "It has become a blight in the neighborhood. He hasn't even mowed the lawn. It has become a blight in the village." She said Loranger had promised to come into Marion and help beautify it, "But he has come into town and has made this a blight."

The issue at hand though, said LeBlanc, is whether the house is a two-family and not about what Loranger's design plans are for the house.

Sandria Parsons of 24 South Street said, "Based on what he's built (at other locations in Marion) ... he's going to build a nice structure; it's not at all going to destroy the village scene." She continued, "We live in a lovely town, and I'm in favor of somebody being allowed to build his home and allow his (in-laws) to live in a family home."

Loranger, visibly frustrated, said he felt he was 'at his wits' end,' and vowed that his house would be constructed to not only be beautiful, but also look like any other one-family house. He said he would have liked to have mowed the grass and upkeep the property, but red municipal tape prevented it. He also added that he could go ahead on his own and build an "enormous" one-family house, "...the ugliest thing in the world if I wanted to without going before the Zoning Board of Appeals."

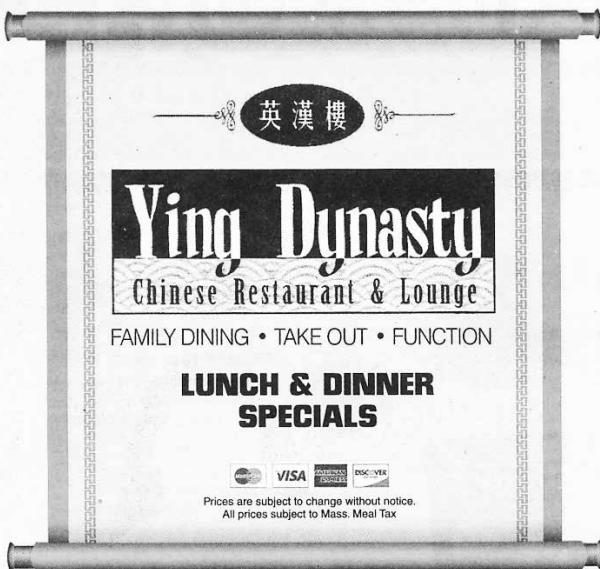

LeBlanc again wondered if a house could be considered 'abandoned' if it was uninhabitable, but in the end, the point was moot as the board concluded that there was enough evidence that the two-family use preceded the 1954 bylaw.

"It is what it is," ZBA member Michelle Smith said once the public hearing was closed. "If it's prior to that bylaw, then it's grandfathered in. It seems to me to be a shut case."

All ZBA members agreed that the house was a two-family before 1954 when the bylaw took effect, superseding the present bylaw.

Then came the next question for the board – should they approve a Special Permit anyway, even though technically it didn't need one due to the grandfathered status? Clearly, Loranger needed some sort of ZBA approval, but by which approach?

"How do we structure that vote?" asked LeBlanc.

Loranger requested the Special Permit, which was the premise of the application, despite its determined grandfathered two-family status. So, could the board simply just approve the Special Permit, which expires in two years, or just vote to grant approval that it is grandfathered? Or, perhaps both?

The board fashioned the motion to grant the Special Permit while acknowledging it did not require a Special Permit because it was deemed grandfathered, regardless.

LeBlanc said he would still like town counsel to answer his question on abandonment versus inhabitability for the board's sake.

In other matters, the board approved a Special Permit for Andrew Sidford Architects to allow a vertical extension over an existing footprint at 13 West Avenue. The original application was for a Variance, which the ZBA granted, but Shippey later discovered that the application should have been for a Special Permit and not a Variance, because the project was not changing the footprint of the property; rather, the owner was seeking to expand vertically upon a pre-existing non-conforming structure. The Special Permit was approved, and the Variance was revoked.

The next meeting of the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals is scheduled for November 9 at 7:30 pm at the Marion Town House.

Resident's Wetland Violation Deemed 'Most Egregious'

Marion Conservation Commission

By Jean Perry

Marion Conservation Commission member Jeffrey Doubrava on October 25 called an alleged recent wetlands violation at 20 Front Street, owned by Ann Severance, the "most egregious" violation he has been aware of since he joined the commission four years ago.

Chairman Cynthia Callow said the commission had recently been informed that wetlands violations had taken place at 20 Front Street, which was issued an Order of Conditions from the commission on March 9, 2016, for the razing of a house, construction of a new house within the flood zone, and also for wetlands delineation. The placement of boulders along the No-Touch Zone was mandated in the Order of Conditions, as well as conditions for the protection of wildlife habitat.

Commission member Shaun Walsh said it was clear to him that wetlands had been “freshly woodchipped” within the No-Touch Zone, and the wetlands had been “destroyed.”

“So the wetlands that were there are gone, and they’ve filled in this area,” said Walsh. He saw no point in visiting Severance, saying, “Sorry – this is a pretty egregious violation.”

Doubrava recommended referring the matter directly to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection and issue a violation.

“At what point do we stop saying it’s okay to go do whatever you want and then say ‘I’m sorry’ later?” said Doubrava.

Walsh said the commission could either refer the matter to the DEP, or it could issue an Enforcement Order and require Severance to file a wetlands restoration plan; however, requiring Severance to file an after-the-fact Notice of Intent and requiring her to appear before the ConCom is not the way the commission should go because a decision and Order of Conditions could be appealed by Severance to the DEP. With an Enforcement Order, Severance could not appeal it to the DEP. The matter would be dealt with in Superior Court.

“This has now eclipsed the Town going in and stripping out the Washburn Park skating pond in terms of most egregious thing that’s been done,” said Doubrava. The wetlands on Severance’s property were not simply just “cut back,” he said, “This is ‘we’ve stripped it out and we’ve filled it in.’”

Callow, however, said she wanted to have the alleged violator come before the commission.

“I want to talk to them,” Callow said. “It’s not what they’re going tell me, it’s what I want to tell them.”

Walsh said, “I don’t have a problem going out there ... and have a conversation with them.”

Commission member Joel Hartley, looking at Google earth, said it looks like “the whole property was dug up.” Furthermore, it appears there are no boulders placed along the No-Touch Zone as required, and the driveway might not have been constructed with the required pervious material.

“It is disappointing to see such a flagrant disregard for the work that the commission did to draft an Order of Conditions,” said Walsh.

Callow said she wrote a letter to Severance and the commission will perform a site visit on November 4.

Also during the meeting, the commission took no action on a Request for Determination for vista pruning at 15 Edgewater Lane, owned by John and Priscilla Wheatley, because the applicant is seeking to possibly perform more than vista pruning to involve phragmite eradication, which was not stated in the public notice. The commission will take up the matter again during the next meeting.

Elsie Frangos make their rounds through the Tri-Town local school committees, their message is one of encouragement and progress as all schools embrace the newest version of standards testing: Next-Gen MCAS.

After two years of working with another testing protocol known as PARCC, the state returned to the MCAS model; that is, an updated model that emphasizes math, science and English Language Arts to a higher level.

White said that while MCAS testing is primarily performed through computer-based technologies, some students will still be using 'paper and pencils' pending a complete roll-out. He said that by spring 2018 all aspects of the program would be completed using computers. White touched on the test materials themselves before asking Frangos to elaborate.

Frangos said MCAS 2.0 was a "more rigorous recalibrated test" that distinguishes itself by focusing on "real world applications" in math, science, and ELA. She said the updated test and associated scoring methodology would establish students' ultimate readiness for either college or success in the workplace.

Parents will receive letters regarding changes that may have an impact on students' scores, reiterating several times the "rigorous" nature of the testing.

Frangos said students would either be "crossing over the river," of that 500 point midpoint in scoring, or that students, teachers, and parents would work together to ensure students could do so.

"Parents may find that students were close but not quite there," Frangos stated when discussing the scoring rubric of the tests. She said, "Five hundred points is the middle," but added that a number of students will most likely score just below that mark.

"There will be help for students and teachers to help them reach the goals," Frangos assured the committee members.

Frangos congratulated Mattapoisett local schools saying, "Mattapoisett won the Pentathlon." She said, "The hard work of the students and teachers, as well as administrators on implementing state-of-the-art curriculums all leads to incredible success." MCAS scores will be mailed to parents beginning November 1.

On the theme of students successfully accomplishing course work, White said that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has now adopted the Obama Administration's tenets of the "Every Student Succeeds Act" that was rolled out in 2015 replacing No Child Left Behind that had debuted during the Bush years. He said ESSA would establish "levels of accountability," while "supporting students where they are and building on those skills."

Frangos shared that the five-year strategic plan that will begin in January 2018 will focus on social and emotional issues, looking at how the schools support each student's needs and development, as well as celebrating diversity.

Mattapoisett schools' Principal Rose Bowman said the recently held Title I Breakfast facilitated by educators Margaret DeMello and Linda Arurui had been a great success. She also discussed the "incredible" turn out and response from parents during the parent-teacher conferences that were held. She said there were discussions around the new standards-based reporting system and that report cards would be going out on December 6.

A Literacy Night with pizza and beverages is planned for November 8 that will include a book fair at the two schools, Bowman said, and on November 10 at 11:00 am in the Old Hammondtown auditorium, the Veteran's Day Celebration will be held with music students from OHS performing.

Mattapoisett School Committee Chairman Rachel Westgate said that the Tri-Town Education Foundation would be receiving renewed focus with an unveiling of a new logo for the Lighthouse Foundation and slogan "Lighting the way for education..." She said that students would be taking home information on the grant-based program at Thanksgiving time and that she hoped community members would use this program during the holidays as a way to honor family and friends through a donation.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett School Committee is scheduled for December 11 at 6:30 pm in the Center School cafeteria.

he would include it in the program."

Frangos touted the program's support by providing people with realistic self-defense tactics and techniques, an awareness of the body, "...as well as how to work with one's adrenaline, employing techniques that can prevent harm and irreparable damage to one's psychology."

Frangos said her own son took the course before heading to college, "and he learned important de-escalation techniques, as well as physical defense," she said.

Offering R.A.D. to the students, said Frangos, is another way the school district can prepare students along the lines of career and college readiness beyond academics.

Citing statistics from the Department of Justice and the FBI, one in three women will be sexually abused in her life; one in four will be sexually assaulted before the age of 18. A sexual assault occurs every two minutes in the United States, said Frangos.

Physical education teachers Nancy Cowen and Christopher Cabe gave the Old Rochester Regional School Committee a comprehensive overview of the new program on October 25 before Frangos asked the School Committee to adopt the curriculum.

R.A.D., said Cabe, is the largest most nationally recognized self-defense program in the country, providing instruction in prevention and risk reduction, with strategies and realistic and dynamic hands on training.

"This program will empower students and give them the skills necessary to defend themselves while at college or in situations where they may be vulnerable," Cabe said.

The teachers both received 30-plus hours of training, along with sensitivity training when it comes to teaching the class to students who may already have been affected by violence.

"What they taught us was invaluable," said Cabe. "It hits home when they put you through that simulation..."

The school, in addition to training, received one R.A.D. padded aggressor suit, ten student protection suits, and pads of different sizes to take the blows of the practice punches and kicks.

"Because we want to see that aggressive fostering," said Cowen. "We want to see them punch as hard as they can."

The Mattapoisett Police Department attempted to institute the program last year, and they donated some additional items such as extra pads and four more student suits. The Rochester Police Department has also pledged volunteers they have trained in R.A.D.

Once the program is piloted, the school will attempt to expand the training to include refresher courses for juniors and seniors before the graduate, possibly even offering it as an elective.

Cowen and Cabe gave a little demonstration of some of the moves for the School Committee and described some of the scenarios for which students are prepared.

"It's very beneficial to all the students out there," said Cabe. "[It's a] tremendous program."

Student Jo Caynon told the committee that although she has extensive experience in martial arts, this program has still helped prepare her for possible future violent encounters.

"What R.A.D. does is get you the feeling of punching someone," Caynon said. "You don't know how hard you're going to have to punch or kick to hurt somebody or to get away."

School Committee member Joe Pires said, "I completely applaud it and I'm a major advocate of it."

The School Committee approved the implementation of the program, but will review the program's progress during its June meeting and then vote on whether to permanently adopt the curriculum.

The next meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee is scheduled for December 6 at 6:30 pm in the ORRJHS media room.

Spooky Stuff at ORR

ORR Update

By Jo Caynon

The students of Old Rochester Regional High School were getting into the spooky Halloween spirit this past week as several activities themed around the holiday took place.

The American Field Service club held their annual pumpkin carving contest during their Tuesday session. Over 30 students crowded the art classroom to carve their various sized pumpkins, the smallest around the size of a clementine and the largest bigger than a basketball.

"We got to carve out pumpkins and listen to some fun, spooky music," senior Hannah Powers said. "Everybody just had a good time and also got to laugh and enjoy each other's attempts at designs."

Creativity was rampant through the designs produced by the club members. For instance, one of the larger jack-o'-lanterns had its sharp teeth chomping down on a smaller squash, and one pumpkin appeared hypnotized.

Students had a chance to view the pumpkins in the main lobby during their English classes and voted to award prizes in four categories: cutest, scariest, most creative, and best traditional style jack-o'-lantern.

In the World Languages Department, students enrolled in the Spanish 3 classes created their own Day of the Dead altars in an interactive project to better learn about Mexican culture. After choosing a famous figure – dead or alive – they constructed dioramas to represent the gravestone and altar.

As with real Dia de los Muertos altars, students were required to include their person's favorite food, skull decorations, and a candle (albeit these were battery-operated candles). The completed altars were lined up on the shelves in the school library to display to the rest of the student body.

"I did my altar on Michael Jackson," said senior Maddie Scheub, adding that the design had a picture of the singer and sparkles to represent his iconic fashion.

Some other examples were of Walt Disney, Will Ferrell, and a Justin Bieber altar complete with a curtain of lights.

The Spanish classes further delved into Day of the Dead festivities by crafting sugar skulls during the actual holiday. The small traditional decorations were formed out of molds and students had the opportunity to shape and decorate their own sugar skulls.

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the local cultural councils of Mattapoisett, Rochester and Marion for their generous support in bringing the Bay Colony Shakespeare Company to the Old Rochester Regional High School on October 17.

Two shows were performed, back to back, of Macbeth, in the high school auditorium. The first show was for Freshmen and Sophomores and the second show was for the Juniors and Seniors. Macbeth is part of the junior year curriculum, so it was very pertinent for the students to be able to see this performed, whether they have already read it, are reading it now, or will be reading it in the near future.

The arts play a major part in education, and the members of the Friends of Old Rochester Drama, Inc. appreciate the support it receives from the local cultural councils as well as the Tri-Town citizens.

Sincerely,

Lisa Cardoza

President, Friends of Old Rochester Drama, Inc.

Author Reading

The Mattapoisett Free Public Library and the Mattapoisett Historical Society will host an author reading and book signing with Mattapoisett native Darcy Lee on Saturday, November 18 at 2:00 pm at the library (7 Barstow Street, Mattapoisett). Darcy Lee's new book is entitled Ghosts of Plymouth, Massachusetts. As a child, Ms. Lee developed what became a lifelong curiosity about the paranormal and made it her hobby to collect ghost-story books on her travels throughout the world. Plymouth is known worldwide as America's Hometown, landing place of the Pilgrims in 1620, and home of the first Thanksgiving. But the real story of the town is a tale of grim beginnings, plague, desperation, massacre, murder and fear. A ghostly Victorian couple is known to wander Burial Hill. Author Darcy H. Lee exposes the haunting acts that lie beneath Plymouth's cherished history. For more information, contact info@

How does chiropractic care help seniors?

Researchers for Topics in Clinical Chiropractic found that for seniors age 75 and over, “Chiropractic users were less likely to have been hospitalized, less likely to have used a nursing home, more likely to report a better health status, more likely to exercise vigorously, and more likely to be mobile in the community. In addition, they were less likely to use prescription drugs.”

Further supporting this improvement in quality of life, a study published in the Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics found that Medicare patients who had regular chiropractic care “reported making only half the annual number of visits to medical providers compared with the national average for people age 65 years and over.”

Often seniors are told that their pain is due to arthritis or aging, and that there isn't much that can be done. Often, chiropractic care can help.

Gateway Youth Hockey

On Friday night, the Gladiators Midget Blue team faced off against the SWS Chiefs and came away with a 6-3 victory. Ethan Harrop started the scoring for the Gladiators early in the first period, taking the assist from Zack Lovendale. Jack Martins, assisted by Bryan Gallagher, scored less than a minute later, giving the Gladiators a 2-0 lead. The Chiefs scored the next two goals, tying the game at 2, until the Gladiators took the lead back when Gallagher stole a pass and snuck a shot by the Chiefs' goaltender. The final goal of the period came when Quirino doCanto found an open Tyler Lovendale, who tapped home the goal. Z. Lovendale started the scoring less than thirty seconds into the second period, on an unassisted goal. Less than a minute later, the Chiefs scored again, making the score 5-3. The scored stayed that way until doCanto took a feed from Noah Reardon and trickled one past the goalie. The Gladiators' goalies both played well in net, with Ethan Allegrini making seven saves and Alex DeMarco making 12 saves on the night.

The Gladiators Mite C team took on a very experienced Falmouth team this weekend, and couldn't muster a lot of offense in the loss. The team is still moving forward each week, learning the ropes, early on in the season. Scoring the lone goal for the Gladiators was Will Manning. Keegan Hewak made his goal-tending debut, facing numerous shots and making plenty of saves in the defeat. The Gladiators will skate next weekend before a bye week.

The Gladiators Midget White team battled to a 6-6 tie against the Devils on Sunday afternoon. It was back and forth between both teams for a majority of the game. The Devils jumped out to a two-goal lead early in the first period, before the Gladiators made a comeback effort. Quirino doCanto got the Gladiators' first goal, getting the pass from Zack Lovendale. Jack Martins scored the next two goals for the Gladiators, giving them the lead, with assists going to Ty Lovendale and Z. Lovendale, along with doCanto. The Devils then tied it up on a power play goal, but doCanto, who was serving the penalty, scored on his first shift after the penalty, unassisted. At the end of the first period, the score was 4-3, but the Devils came out early in the second period and scored again, tying the game. The Lovendale brothers each added a goal in the second period, with assists going to Cam DeMarco and Matt Youlden. The Gladiators just couldn't tighten up the defense, and the Devils managed to tie the game up late

Music At St. Anthony's

On Sunday, November 5, at 4:00 pm, Rosalind Mohnsen will perform an organ recital for the Music At St. Anthony's program. Ms. Mohnsen is a nationally renowned concert musician and an annual featured convention performer for the American Guild of Organists. The recital is at St. Anthony of Padua church in New Bedford's North End and is part of the fundraising series for the restoration of the over 100 year old Casavant Pipe Organ, Opus 489. Complimentary tea and refreshments are served after the recital at a reception to meet the organist in the church hall. A suggested donation of $10 will be collected at the door, and patrons are encouraged to "Adopt an Organ Part" to help the fundraising.

Rosalind Mohnsen is Director of Music and Organist at Immaculate Conception Church of Malden/Medford, Massachusetts. She regularly performs in concerts nationwide, including the National Shrine in Washington D.C., performs for events such as Boston's First Night, and for 23 years for national conventions of the Organ Historical Society. piano from the University of Nebraska and the Master of Music degree and Performer's Certificate in organ from Indiana University. She has studied piano with Thomas Fritz and organ with Myron J. Roberts, Conrad Morgan, Robert Rayfield, and in Paris with Jean Langlais.

St. Anthony's great pipe organ is one of the largest of its type and size in North America. It was designed for the space in the large Romanesque cathedral style church, which possesses a great acoustic quality due to the wood and plaster interior finishes. It is difficult to find items that appreciate in value, but a fine instrument of this quality does so when it is properly cared for. Since this organ cannot be replaced, it is a treasure for New Bedford and the New England region; it is being preserved through this music series. Over the last 105 years, it has been in use and maintained, preserving and exercising its powerful and high quality voice. Funds raised from the series help with regular maintenance and ongoing restoration of this special instrument.

Ms. Mohnsen is familiar with this pipe organ and the acoustical quality of the church since she was a featured performer in September 2011. The program she presented at that time had such a fluid quality and soaring musicality that enriched and enhanced the visual beauty of the church. The selections for her program for Music at St. Anthony's on November 5 at 4:00 pm will include: Lemmens-Marche pontificale; Guilmant-Second Meditation; Franck-Final; and Vierne-Feux follets.

For more information, please call Gisele at 508-264-8010. Donations to the organ fund can be made on the Internet at www.musicatsaintanthony.org.

MOVIE REVIEW

Sticks and Stones

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Brawl in Cell Block 99.* Starring Vince Vaughn and Jennifer Carpenter. Directed by S. Craig Zahler. Running time: 132 minutes. No MPAA rating, but with very strong violence. Now available on streaming platforms.

In the first shot of Brawl in Cell Block 99, the heavy tire of a truck flattens a can of lite beer. This, I imagine, is a signal that you're about to get a shot of the hard stuff. You may have read about how ferally brutal Brawl is, and what a change of pace it is for its star, Vince Vaughn, but the truly shocking thing about it is how tender much of it is, how much humanity even briefly seen supporting players are apportioned. The movie is hushed, almost meditative, as it lays the groundwork for a grand finale involving crushed skulls, faces scraped against concrete. The audience for the film may fall within a very tiny Venn diagram of those who can sit with subtly emotional, drawn-out scenes and those who can hang with the bone-cracking and bloodletting.

It is also some kind of grim masterpiece, fully delivering on the promise of writer/director S. Craig Zahler's 2015 debut, Bone Tomahawk. In that one, a mash-up of classical western and splatter flick, Kurt Russell and a small posse delve into hell — land of hulking cannibals — to save a woman from a fate worse than death. Here, Vaughn, as recovering alcoholic with a side order of rage issues Bradley Thomas, must descend level by level into a dungeon of horrors to rescue his pregnant wife Lauren (Jennifer Carpenter) and their unborn daughter from an equally ghastly end. There's a heaping helping of white-knightism here, but it doesn't go unchallenged, nor do easy notions of manhood or machismo. Violence in these two films is not to be relished, but to be engaged in with sorrow that it had to play out this way — without sadism but also without mercy. They are portraits of men in extremis, grotesque but fully alive and human.

After being laid off from his auto-mechanic gig, Bradley comes home to discover that Lauren has been cheating on him. He tells her to go into the house, then uses his fists on her car, finally ripping the hood off. We don't need to be told that he is inflicting damage that he can easily fix; the same would not be true of wounds dealt to Lauren. And then a wondrous thing happens: after punishing the car, Bradley steps inside and faces Lauren, and they talk. They talk like adults in a movie for adults. This, too, is shocking. Everyone who meets Bradley seems to sense that he has, as a detective puts it, a moral compass. They can also see in his eyes that he would rather not hurt people, but is exceptionally capable of doing so if his hand is forced. Well, his hand is forced, in an odyssey that takes him from a minimum to a maximum security prison, and finally to "the prison within the prison," ruled by the sportive sadist Warden Tuggs (Don Johnson).

Brawl in Cell Block 99, like Zahler's Bone Tomahawk, doesn't use brutality for a kick or a tickle. It's lumbering, terrible, thudding stuff, with the fights often filmed in long takes so we can see that, yes, that is indeed Vince Vaughn distributing pain like Halloween candy. Bradley is a bad-ass, but Vaughn isn't interested in that aspect of him (nor is Zahler). You're not meant to go "who!" when the fists fly and arms are splintered, the way you were in something like Sylvester Stallone's back-to-basics 2008 Rambo. You're meant to wince, avert your eyes. Vaughn brings an intelligent wit and vulnerability that play against his six-foot-five frame. Bradley is a man who could easily be a hero, except that fate has made him a villain.

He does it all for his woman and his baby. As with Bone Tomahawk, I couldn't be less interested in unpacking the story's politics. It says nothing in particular about abortion or the right to choose — that's just used as motivation. A great many effective pulp fantasies would also not pass today's ideological purity tests. I'm as lefty as they come, and whatever right-wing skeleton may be rattling around inside Brawl doesn't concern me. There's no agenda being pressed here, just a cracking story with across-the-board fine performances (it's predictable that Udo Keir is in perfect creepy form as a crime associate, but how about the surprisingly authoritative work from Marc Blucas — the most boring presence on Buffy the Vampire Slayer — as Bradley's racist drug-dealer friend?). I don't know how S. Craig Zahler votes, but I have seen how he writes and directs, and I'm ready to say he's the most exciting filmmaker working in the violent genres since Tarantino raised his flag 25 years ago. Watch him.

He struggles to find a balance between the rights of homeowners and a desire to protect the character of their small rural town. Bumping up against angry homeowners and builders who look the other way, Mr. Bena works with his community and attempts to pass a new bylaw to limit house size.

This film was directed and produced by Thomas Bena who earned a degree in marketing from UMass Amherst in 1989. After he decided working in the business world wasn't for him, he grabbed a backpack and a surfboard and headed to Australia to "find

On Wednesday the Marion Natural History Museum's after-school group created a soil profile for the museum, and took an inventory of the creatures in several different types of soils. The students also learned, with the use of a rain-simulator, that soil that is too well worked will compact and water will run off the top instead of getting to the roots of plants. We had a lot of fun experimenting with soils and wish to thank Maggie Payne, soil scientist with USDA Natural Resources Dept. for sharing her expertise with us. Photo by Elizabeth Leidhold

Halloween in the Marion village is one event that shouldn't be missed! Hundreds upon hundreds of little ghosts, ghouls, and goblins took to the streets to show off their costumes and follow it up with some treats (no tricks) and refreshments at the Marion Music Hall, sponsored by those very kind witches at the Marion Art Center. The Sippican School students led the parade under the direction of Hannah Moore. Photos by Paul Lopes

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your proven leadership qualities make you the perfect person to take on an important workplace task.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although some compromise might need to be reached regarding your stand on an important issue, you'll still be able to get the most crucial points across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A chance to make a career change carries both positive and uncertain possibilities. Best advice: Check it out thoroughly and don't be rushed into a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're still a staunch supporter of one side of an important issue. But be prepared to deal with new information that could cause you to question your current stand.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're perceptive and quick to act when you sense that someone needs help. You are an always-dependable friend.

the Marion Music Hall, the Board of Selectmen has unanimously approved new Guidelines and Rental Fees. With the Council on Aging having now moved to the renovated Veteran's Hall on Route 6, there are increased rental opportunities at the Hall as well.

This historic masterpiece was the gift of Elizabeth Sprague Pitcher Taber whose vision was that Marion and surrounding communities have a hall for lectures, concerts, and performances. It was constructed in 1891 for $23,000. Through the years, it has been a favored venue for town committee meetings and parties, for concerts and musicals, and for private events including weddings and parties. Mrs. Taber also had the vision to build the Town Library and Natural History Museum, the Stone Chapel at the Congregational Church, and Tabor Academy, originally founded to educate girls and boys of Marion.

The Music Hall is available free of charge to all Town of Marion committees and organizations such as the Elizabeth Taber Library, the Council on Aging, and the Police and Fire Departments. In honoring Elizabeth Taber's wishes, it remains accessible to all Marion citizens according to the new fee schedule, which helps defray the costs to taxpayers while covering maintenance and utility expenses. While the rate structure has changed, the rates remain among the most competitive in Marion and surrounding towns. Local couples will be hard pressed to find such a great wedding venue on a weekend for as low as $600. (Bookings made before September 1, 2017 will honor the original rental fees.)

For inquiries and further information, please contact Tami Daniel, Music Hall Coordinator, at tdaniel@marionma.gov or 508-748-9556.

Need a Bible?

The Mattapoisett Congregational Church has several Bibles that are no longer being used and is giving them away to new homes. If you'd like a Bible, please drop by the church during office hours, 8:30 am to noon, Monday through Friday. You may call ahead to 508-758-2671 to reserve a copy if you wish.

Most of these Bibles are in the Revised Standard Version. They are all clean, complete, and in very good shape.

Be a Friend. Change a Life

The Friendly Visitor Program is sponsored by the Mattapoisett Senior Center to provide companionship and support to isolated seniors who express feelings of loneliness and isolation. Through weekly home visits, volunteers develop meaningful, long-term relationships with seniors who appreciate the company and look forward to the visits. Many seniors have fascinating life stories to share. And often volunteers discover they receive as much as they give. The impact is powerful. Your time and commitment can change a person's life; friendship is an essential ingredient for everyone's mental health. Refer someone you know or become a visitor yourself. Contact Susan Keir, Outreach Coordinator, at 508-758-4110 or email outreachcoa@mattapoisett.net.

Safe Storage and Disposal of Medications and Syringes

Many local police departments offer 24/7 prescription medication drop-boxes for the safe disposal of unused or expired medications. Medications that can be disposed of in the drop-boxes include prescription ointments, prescription medications, medication patches, and samples, as well as over the counter medications, vitamins and pet medications. Lotions, liquids, and non-prescription ointments are not permitted. For your privacy, please remember to remove all personal identification before placing items in the drop-box. In Mattapoissett, the medication drop-box is in the lobby of the Police Station, located at 64 County Road (Route 6).

For the safe disposal of needles and syringes, sharps containers are available free of charge from the Mattapoissett Police Station and the Public Health Nurse's office. Used sharps containers may be returned to the Public Health Nurse's office for safe and proper disposal of these items.

The safe and proper storage and disposal of all medications, needles, and syringes helps to prevent accidents or misuse. These items should always be stored in a secure location, out of sight and out of reach of children. To assist you with safe storage in the home, lock-boxes can be purchased at your local pharmacy or retail store such as CVS, Walgreens, or Rite Aid.

For more information, please contact the Mattapoissett Police Department at 508-758-4141 (Non-Emergency), or the Public Health Nurse at 508-758-4118.

Thank you for your help in protecting our community by safely storing and disposing of your medications, needles, and syringes.

Animal Advice

Jay Gould, DVM

I realize that I should take my cat to the vet annually to get a physical and whatever vaccinations may be due, but getting the cat into the cat carrier is a chore. Any hints?

Cats are not dumb. If they see the cat carrier come out they disappear. Some cats don't mind the carrier if it is left out all year round. Feed them in the carrier, allow them to nap in it, let it be associated with more pleasant experiences than a car ride.

If you haven't gotten the cat to think positively about the carrier, put the cat in a bathroom prior to getting the carrier out of the basement. That way the cat can't disappear. Bring the carrier into the bathroom and keep the door closed so the cat won't escape. Feliway is a pheromone that may decrease your cat's anxiety when it is sprayed or wiped on the carrier.

Sunday service.

A group of volunteers would like to pick you up on Sunday for the church service and take you home afterwards. The worship service begins at 10:00 am and a fellowship time follows the service. The church has an elevator and is handicap accessible.

All you need to do is call the church office at 508-748-1053 by noon on Friday to arrange for a ride on Sunday. Also, let the office know whether you have any mobility aids such as a walker or wheelchair so that the appropriate vehicle can transport you. We have a team of six drivers who would love to bring you to church. More drivers will be arranged if needed.

We will gladly arrange for this transportation for one week or for every week. Please do not hesitate to call the church office to ask for transportation. Our drivers are happy to transport you.

We are excited about this program and look forward to seeing you in church.

I Found the Aardvark!

Each week, hidden somewhere in the pages of The Wanderer is a tiny drawing of an aardvark. The little guy you are looking for looks exactly like the one pictured above (but don't put down this page as your answer, there's another one hidden somewhere in this issue).

Once you find the aardvark you can submit your answer online and if you are right you will get Aardvark Points! You can then use these points to get cool Aardvark Prizes!

To enter visit: www.wanderer.com and Click on I Found the Aardvark

In the October 26, 2017 issue the Aardvark was on page 40!
